All things birds in the Second City!

Chicago Ornithological Society is a volunteer-run organization at the forefront of Chicago region birding since 1912. From expert guided trips to cutting-edge science to avenues for action, we bring together bird enthusiasts of all ages, experience levels, and backgrounds to share our love of birds and further their conservation.

Your membership directly funds bird conservation, outreach projects, and events across Chicagoland. Additionally, members receive our bimonthly e-newsletter, The Chicago Birder, full of articles about our work, upcoming events, profiles of fellow birders, tips on bird identification, opportunities to take action, and, of course, gorgeous bird photography!
